CYBER COLUMN: Seasons of change

By John Duncan

I’m sitting here under the old oak tree, wondering about the seasons of change. Fall arrives with the splendor of change. In our town, the few trees that dot the landscape will turn from green to yellow, brown and red. Change will color the world afresh.

I'm sitting here pondering the change that surrounds me. Our middle child left for Baylor University. Baylor is a good school. After all, the women's basketball team won the national championship, and the campus appeals wonderfully to the human eye, and the Baylor tradition lives forever, but for me it represents change. The cell phone generation means I can keep in touch almost daily, but life in our home finds an empty room and a quietness that seems strange.
