The Hardin-Simmons University Students in Free Enterprise team has been named regional champions for the seventh consecutive year, beating out regional competitors such as Baylor University and Louisiana State University. The team has earned a berth in the national finals to be held May 21-23 in Kansas City, Mo., where they again will report on their year-long community outreach projects. Teams develop community outreach projects that relate to SIFE's five educational topics—market economics, success skills, entrepreneurship, financial literacy and business ethics. The HSU team completed 67 community events this year.

DOWN HOME: Call to daughter transcends time

Lindsay's voice in my ear transported me through time and space. And what a trip it was.

Physically, I was driving home from work, headed out of Dallas, through Farmers Branch and Carrollton, on toward Lewisville. Emotionally and spiritually, I was lingering in an elementary school hallway in Nashville, Tenn., reluctantly turning loose of my firstborn child's tiny hand as she walked into her kindergarten classroom for the first time.

I called Lindsay one afternoon last week, just a few hours after she completed her last final exam of her senior year at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene. For the past couple of days, she had been working on an accounting project, studying for that final final and writing a cover letter to send with her resumé to a prospective employer.

NASHVILLE—The Southern Baptist Convention Committee on Nominations announced Texas nominees for SBC committees and boards—most from churches either uniquely or dually aligned with the Southern Baptists of Texas Convention, a group that broke away from the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Nominees will serve if elected by messengers to the SBC annual meeting, June 13-14, in Greens-boro, N.C.

The committee nominated Chris Osborne, pastor of Central Baptist Church in Bryan, for the SBC Executive Committee, along with Dean Combs of Odessa who received a second term. New nominees for the International Mission Board are Nathan Lino, pastor of Northeast Houston Baptist Church in Humble; Jimmy Pritchard, pastor of First Baptist Church in Forney; Todd Edwards, a layman at First Baptist Church in Dallas; and Marshall Johnson, bivocational pastor of MacArthur Boulevard Baptist Church in Irving. Stephen Swofford, pastor of First Baptist Church in Rockwall, and Bill Sutton, pastor of First Baptist Church in McAllen, are nominated for second terms on the IMB.

Baptist Health Foundation accepts grant requests. Baptist Health Foundation of San Antonio will accept letters of inquiry until June 15 from nonprofit organizations that want to be considered for funding in 2006. To be considered for a $25,000 to $250,000 grant, a not-for-profit organization must be a public charity that addresses a community healthcare need of residents in the foundation's eight-county geographic area—Atascosa, Bandera, Bexar, Comal, Guadalupe, Kendall, Medina and Wilson. Only one request per organization per year will be considered, and organizations must have at least one full year of operating history. In addition, the foundation will make available small grants of less than $5,000 to support grassroots health activities primarily through local churches. For more information, go to www.bhfsa.org or call (210) 735-9009.

Baylor regents approve budget. Baylor University's board of regents at its spring meeting approved a $317 million operating budget for 2006-07 and authorized construction of a new facility for the university's intercollegiate equestrian program. The 2006-07 operating budget, which takes effect June 1, reflects a $21 million increase—7.1 percent—over the current budget. It includes $11.5 million in additional merit, need-based and graduate assistant scholarships—a 16.3 percent increase from this year's allocation for institutional financial aid. The Willis Family Equestrian Center, named for Baylor graduates Richard and Karen Willis of Coffeyville who provided the lead gift for the project, will be constructed near the Baylor campus. The 45,000-square-foot facility will include a covered riding arena with spectator seating, more than 20 stalls to house the horses, and restroom facilities for the women's equestrian intercollegiate athletics team.

TOGETHER: Texas Baptist students go into world

The temperature in Texas is starting to rise as summer approaches, and that means Texas Baptists are once again on the verge of sending hundreds of college students on mission throughout the state and around the world.

I was both proud and humbled last year as I took part in the commissioning service for our student summer missionaries. To see a church choir loft filled with hundreds of students willing to give their summer to missions and ministry is to be overwhelmed by the continuing reality of God's call upon his people to serve him and upon their willingness to do so.

NAMB cancels Reccord's PR, Internet, jet contracts

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (ABP)—The North American Mission Board has canceled four controversial contracts initiated by former president Bob Reccord that critics said were wasting Southern Baptist missions money.

The cancellations, which reportedly will save millions of dollars, were among the steps reported to trustees May 2 in an attempt to rebuild the agency's credibility after Reccord resigned under pressure April 17.

During their recent meeting, trustees canceled consulting contracts with two public relations firms, ended NAMB's relationship with 316 Networks to sell broadband services to churches, and bought out of the contract for use of a private jet.
