CYBER COLUMN: Love's what it's all about, after all ... and before all

By Jeanie Miley

My friend was at the end of her rope. Life had closed in on her in such a way that she felt trapped, and the truth is that suddenly, some options that had been available to her were gone.

"There's nothing out ahead to look forward to," she told me, "and I don't know that I can keep on doing this."

Darfur peace talks faltering

By Robert Marus

ABP Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON (ABP)—Peace talks aimed at ending what the United States government and international human-rights groups have labeled “genocide” in Darfur faltered May 2, just days after thousands of protesters rallied in Washington for beefed-up measures to help the people of the Sudanese region.

Everyone needs hope, encouragement

- Isaiah 54:1-57:21

By James Adair

Baptist University of the Americas, San Antonio

The chapters in Isaiah under consideration this week are set in the late exilic and early postexilic period, during the last half of the sixth century B.C. It was a time of great excitement and great disappointment, a period of high hopes and harsh realities. The Jews in exile heard a message of deliverance, but the situation in the land of their ancestors was not quite what they had expected.
