The Catholic Church in Candelaria, Mexico, has been without a priest since 1995 but this man faithfully sweeps the yard clean and keeps the inside in good repair.

A Baptist Child & Family Services program has made initial contact with local leaders about beginning a Bible study, and later a church, in the small mountain village.

Carter gathers diverse Baptist leaders

ATLANTA (ABP)—Leaders of Baptist conventions and organizations comprising more than 20 million adherents in North America explored “additional opportunities for fellowship and cooperation” in Atlanta April 10.

President Jimmy Carter, a lifelong Baptist lay leader and Sunday school teacher, sponsored the gathering at the Carter Center. Bill Underwood, president-elect of Mercer University in Macon, Ga., helped recruit the participants.

Carter noted the historic nature of the meeting, which attracted a diverse array of groups. He urged participants to transcend their differences—including race, culture, geography and convention affiliation—and seek common purpose.

Book Reviews

American Theocracy: The Peril and Politics of Radical Religion, Oil, and Borrowed Money in the 21st Century By Kevin Phillips (Viking Adult)

In Wealth and Democracy, maverick political and economic thinker Kevin Phillips urged readers to consider how “plutocracy”—from the Greek, meaning rule by the rich—is a fitting characterization of our nation’s governance. His point was that money has become the driving force of government in the United States.

Three years later, in his 12th book, Phillips examines another powerful political motivator—religion. This time, the richly experienced analyst approaches the subject with no irony. He bluntly calls this one American Theocracy and fills more than 400 pages with a blistering vision of the decline of the separation of church and state.

Corts named college council president. Former Baptist college president Paul Corts has been named the fifth president of the 30-year-old Council for Christian Colleges and Universities—an association of more than 170 Christian institutions worldwide. He will assume the office in June. Corts has served as assistant attorney general for administration for the U.S. Department of Justice since 2002. Previously, he worked nearly 12 years as president of Palm Beach Atlantic University, a Florida Baptist school. Before that, he was president of Wingate University in North Carolina and held administrative and teaching positions at Oklahoma Baptist University and Western Kentucky University. His brother, Tom, recently retired as president of Samford University, an Alabama Baptist school.

Ouachita names president. Rex Horne, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church of Little Rock, Ark., for 16 years, has been named president-elect of Ouachita Baptist University in Arkadelphia, Ark., effective May 1. Ouachita trustees unanimously elected Horne at a called meeting April 6. He was the unanimous choice of the 18-member presidential search committee. Horne served as a pastor in Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma before becoming pastor at Immanuel, where former President Bill Clinton was one of his church members. As the 15th president in Ouachita's 120-year history, Horne follows Andy Westmoreland, who begins June 1 as president of Samford University of Birmingham, Ala. Horne completed his freshman year at Ouachita and completed his bachelor's degree at Arkansas College—now Lyon College—in Batesville, Ark., where he served on staff at First Baptist Church of Batesville. He earned a master of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth and a doctor of ministry degree from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. Horne and his wife, Becky, have four grown children.

Salvador headlines CBF summit on HIV/AIDS. Salvador—a popular Latino Christian music group originally from Austin—will perform a free concert at 8 p.m., June 21, in the Sidney Marcus Auditorium of the Georgia World Congress Center as a part of the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship's HIV/AIDS Summit, "Breaking the Silence: Compassion for an HIV Positive World."
