The Gospel According to Disney-Faith, Trust, and Pixie Dust by Mark I. Pinsky (John Knox Press)

Preachers and Bible teachers, keep this one handy! This highly accessible volume provides insight into the three ingredients consistent in the Disney blockbuster cartoons—faith, trust and pixie dust.

Mark Pinsky carefully reviews 31 of the major feature-length cartoons produced by Disney studios, beginning with Snow White (1937) and concluding with Brother Bear (2003). He offers a too-brief introduction to Walt and Roy Disney's Christian faith, leaving that for other biographers and the countless writers who have chronicled the Disney epic.

Birthplace of black gospel music burns. Fire destroyed Chicago's historic Pilgrim Baptist Church. Composer Thomas Dorsey is credited with developing black gospel music as a distinct style at the church in the late 1920s and early 1930s. The fire was caused by a torch or torches used by crews repairing the church roof, Chicago Fire Department Spokesman Larry Langford said. Arson investigators found no criminal intent in the starting of the blaze.

Georgetown College gets 'clean bill of health.' One year after being placed on probation by its accrediting association, Georgetown College has been given a "clean bill of health," President Bill Crouch reported. The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools placed Georgetown on probation in December 2004, saying the college failed to demonstrate compliance with the requirement of financial stability. In the wake of an economic downturn after 9/11, Georgetown's net assets declined by more than $16.5 million, from $61 million to $44.5 million. Since that time, the school's net assets have increased to $52.4 million, said James Moak, Georgetown's chief financial officer. The school's long-term endowment also has rebounded.

2nd Opinion: Religion/evolution: False dichotomy

By Brent Walker

The debate over whether and how to teach evolution in the public schools continues 80 years after the Scopes “monkey trial” in Tennessee. Now the dispute itself has evolved into a pitched battle in the larger culture wars.

President Bush has declared his support for the inclusion of intelligent design in the curriculum of public schools. Recently, eight members of the Dover County School Board in Pennsylvania were voted out of office after adopting a policy that mandated the introduction of intelligent design in biology class. The policy provoked a federal lawsuit and led a Bush-appointed judge to find it “abundantly clear” that the teaching of intelligent design in science class is unconstitutional.
