Children's home offers belated Christmas celebration for single mother and daughter

ROUND ROCK—Robyn James and her daughter, Bailee, missed celebrating last Christmas. But Texas Baptist Children's Home recently gave them reason to be festive.

Bailee, who turned 4 in December, and her mother were living in an old Buick after they lost their apartment last October. The little girl was hospitalized several times for pneumonia, and that made it difficult for her mother to work as often as needed.

Creationism

We were stunned to see a prominent photo of our president, Ken Ham, standing next to the dinosaur exhibit inside our new Creation Museum accompanying your story on religious fundamentalists and their alleged anti-modernism (March 31).

"As easy as it is for those of us who are white to look back and say, 'That's a terrible statement,' I grew up in a very segregated South, and I think you have to cut some slack. And I'm going to be probably the only conservative in America who's going to say something like this, but I'm just telling you, we've got to cut some slack to people who grew up being called names, being told: 'You have to sit in the balcony when you go to the movie. You have to go to the back door to go into the restaurant. And you can't sit out there with everyone else. There's a separate waiting room in the doctor's office. Here's where you sit on the bus.' And you know what? Sometimes people do have a chip on their shoulder and resentment. And you have to just say: 'I probably would too. I probably would too. In fact, I may have had ... more of a chip on my shoulder had it been me.'"

Mike Huckabee

Former presidential candidate, governor and Baptist pastor, on the preaching of Jeremiah Wright, Barack Obama's former pastor (MSNBC)

Neither Ham nor the museum was actually mentioned in the article, which suggests that one of your editors made an ill-informed decision in the photo selection. It shows an ignorance of our ministry and its methods.

First, Answers in Genesis does believe in scientific inquiry. That is why we employ staff with doctorate degrees in astronomy, geology, medicine and biology. Also, contrary to what was implied, our identity is not defined by what we oppose; it's defined by our adherence to proclaiming the positive message that the Bible is true.

Pastor describes McCain's devout—but low-key—faith

By Greg Warner

Associated Baptist Press

PHOENIX (ABP)—John McCain has a deep and personal Christian commitment despite his reluctance to speak publicly about it, according to the man McCain calls his pastor.

Dan Yeary, pastor of North Phoenix Baptist Church, described the Arizona senator and his wife, Cindy, as “very unobtrusive” people who don’t seek special attention when they are able to come to worship. “They come in the side door. They’re very pleasant. They talk to people. They’re very approachable.”

Texas missions offering goal set at more than $5.2 million

By Ken Camp

Managing Editor

The Woman’s Missionary Union of Texas board approved a $5,220,075 goal for the 2008 Mary Hill Davis Offering for Texas Missions—a slight increase over last year’s $5.2 million goal and more than $800,000 beyond the total received in 2007.

The increased goal reflects the great needs that can be met through ministries supported by the offering, as well as faith that God will touch the hearts of Texas Baptists to give in response to those needs, said Texas WMU President Nelda Taylor.

Foster families eager to share lives with children

By Jenny Pope

Percy Huaroc and his wife, Nancy, don't have any children of their own. They've spent most of their married lives focused on their careers.

But when they heard about Peru's pilot foster care program, they jumped at the chance to impact a child's life and show God's love to others.

For pope & president, a chasm over Iraq

By Tom Feeney

Religion News Service

WASHINGTON (RNS)— On social issues like abortion, gay marriage and stem cell research, the conservative Pope Benedict XVI and the conservative President Bush find much common ground.

But when Benedict makes his first visit to the United States, his meeting with Bush is likely to underscore an issue where a deep divide remains between the Vatican and the White House—the war in Iraq.

Huckabee visits Ouachita, gives campaign-trail insight

By Trennis Henderson

Ouachita Baptist University

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (ABP)—Describing some aspects of his recent presidential campaign as “just incredible fun,” former Arkansas governor Mike Huckabee recently paid a brief visit to his alma mater, Ouachita Baptist University.

Huckabee, who served 10 years as Arkansas’ governor, put together a run for the Republican presidential nomination that consistently surprised critics, who early on dismissed him as an also-ran.

BGCT budget shortfall anticipated; cuts implemented

By Ken Camp

Managing Editor

DALLAS—Anticipated 2008 Baptist General Convention of Texas income falls $5.3 million short of the budget, requiring cutbacks in spending and staffing, according to a report to the BGCT Executive Board.

The report also calls on the board to provide greater financial oversight—particularly regarding use of investment assets, which have dropped about $27 million in seven years.
