

Cybercolumn for 3/01 by Brett Younger: A day out in the snow_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 3/01/04

CYBERCOLUMN: A day out in the snow

By Brett Younger

On Saturday, Feb. 14, we had the best snow in Fort Worth in years, so our family decided to take a long walk. I assumed I would end up catching snowballs with my back and wore old clothes—a pair of jeans that Carol doesn't allow me to wear in public because they're holy in a bad way, tennis shoes, sweatshirt and an overcoat. The only thing I took with me was my keys, which I carefully put in my pocket.

The snow was gorgeous. The kids on our block were making anorexic snowmen. Years of living in Fort Worth have kept them from any understanding of how to make a proper snowman. We had a street full of snow pillars that would embarrass Frosty.

Brett Younger

Sloan criticizes Lariat editorial supporting gay marriage_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 3/01/04

Sloan criticizes Lariat editorial supporting gay marriage

By Marv Knox

Editor

WACO—A Baylor University student newspaper editorial supporting gay marriage deviates from “traditional Christian teachings” and “comes dangerously close to violating university policy,” Baylor President Robert Sloan said.

COMMENTARY: Keep the government's nose out of our seminaries_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 3/01/04

COMMENTARY:

Keep the government's nose out of our seminaries

By Brent Thompson

Amid all the publicity from Mel Gibson's movie "The Passion of the Christ," few Christians will likely notice that the Supreme Court quietly published an opinion that may have just as much impact on the lives of churches and ministers as the movie. On Feb. 26 in the case of Locke vs. Davey, the Supreme Court decided 7-2 that the neither the establishment nor free exercise clauses of the First Amendment require states to fund religious instruction.

High-profile advocates such as Jay Sekulow of the American Center for Law and Justice and Solicitor General Theodore Olsen argued that states should be required to fund religious instruction if they also fund secular instruction. The state of Washington argued that the principle of separation of church and state prohibits funding of religious studies.

If groups of churches or denominations want well-trained ministers, they should set up and fund their own seminaries, colleges and Bible schools
-Brent Thompson

‘Passion’ reviews take issue with violence, lack of context_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 2/27/04

‘Passion’ reviews take issue with violence, lack of context

By Robert Marus

Associated Baptist Press

WASHINGTON (ABP)—The reviews of “The Passion of the Christ” are in—and while both Christian and secular observers offered praise for it, many of the same reviewers also took significant issue with the movie.

Church connection key in marketing □Passion□_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 2/27/04

Church connection key in marketing ‘Passion’

By Ted Parks

Associated Baptist Press

LOS ANGELES (ABP)—Once upon a time, pastors warned churchgoers against the evils of the silver screen. Now they are packing believers and unchurched guests alike into movie houses across the land.

Leaders warn □The Passion□ not for most children_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 2/27/04

Leaders warn ‘The Passion’ not for

most children

By John Hall

Texas Baptist Communications

Christians may want everyone to hear the gospel, but parents should be wary of letting their younger children view Mel Gibson's "The Passion of the Christ," according to faith leaders.

Internet buzzing as non-Christians debate 'Passion'_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 2/27/04

Internet buzzing as non-Christians debate 'Passion'

By John Hall

Texas Baptist Communications

While many Christians have geared up for Mel Gibson's "The Passion of the Christ" to be the greatest evangelistic opportunity since Pentecost, non-

Christian reaction to the film has been mixed.

CBF must avoid partisan politics, Vestal urges_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 2/27/04

CBF must avoid partisan politics, Vestal urges

By John Pierce

Baptists Today

ATLANTA (ABP)—“We are not going to be involved in secular politics,” Cooperative Baptist Fellowship Coordinator Daniel Vestal told the CBF Coordinating Council at its winter meeting in Atlanta.

Freedom panel recommends 11

nations for sanctions_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 2/27/04

Freedom panel recommends 11 nations for sanctions

By Robert Marus

Associated Baptist Press

WASHINGTON (ABP)—A federal panel charged with monitoring global religious freedom conditions has picked 11 countries as the world's worst violators of that basic human right.

ABC, CBF in on formation of new ecumenical effort_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 2/27/04

ABC, CBF in on formation of new ecumenical effort

By John Pierce

Baptists Today

ATLANTA (ABP)—Leaders of the American Baptist Churches in the USA and the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship say they are excited about potential opportunities for formal dialogue with other U.S. Christians, including Roman Catholics, Orthodox, Protestants, Evangelicals and Pentecostals.

BWA committee shares blame for SBC pull-out, member says_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 2/27/04

BWA committee shares blame for SBC pull-out, member says

By John Pierce

Baptists Today

NASHVILLE (ABP)—Baptist historian Albert Wardin, a member of the Baptist World Alliance membership committee that recommended including the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship in the worldwide group, said blame for the reaction from Southern Baptist leaders can be placed on several shoulders.

Bush again circumvents Senate; appoints Pryor federal judge_22304

March 1, 2004

Posted: 2/27/04

Bush again circumvents Senate; appoints Pryor federal judge

By Robert Marus

Associated Baptist Press

WASHINGTON (ABP)—For the second time, President Bush has used a special administrative maneuver to install a controversial nominee to a federal court.