Scam callers preying on churches' compassion

By John Hall

Texas Baptist Communications

SAN ANTONIO—Scam artists are preying on churches' generosity to extort money from them by describing tense situations in which purported members of the congregations need funds.

Neil Bennett, pastor of Churchill Baptist Church in San Antonio, received a phone call just before a recent Sunday morning service from a man who identified himself as a deputy sheriff in rural West Virginia. The man indicated he was with an African-American family who needed money to repair their car.

CLC files ethics complaint against gambling PAC

By John Hall

Texas Baptist Communications

AUSTIN—Texas Baptists' public policy agency has filed a complaint with the Texas Ethics Commission against a political action committee of horserace track owners and supporters of video slot machines.

The Baptist General Convention of Texas Christian Life Commission filed the complaint against Texans for Economic Development, alleging the group could be using corporate funds inappropriately to try to influence legislative races.

TEXARKANA—It's easy to lift the spirits of a special-needs child, Sam Clem insists. Just put the child on the back of a horse ready to do his bidding.

Clem directs the Runnin' WJ Ranch outside Texarkana, a therapeutic riding ranch that draws more than 90 special-needs children a week from Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana. Six schools bring children to participate in the program, which draws support from churches throughout the area.

Cooperative Baptist Fellowship

DALLAS—The more than 1,200 backpacks stuffed with school supplies that Royal Lane Baptist Church in Dallas gave away last summer wasn't the only impressive statistic about its mission trip to Perry County, Ala.

The Alabama trip capped a five-year tour of all five regions focused on by Together for Hope, the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship's rural poverty initiative.

We see them everywhere and if we are honest, we would have to admit we have been one of them at times. They are individuals who claim to be believers but show little evidence outside the walls of the church.

MARSHALL—For June Jones, “If at first you don’t succeed, try, try again” is more than an old adage. The saying has been a guiding light to her.

More than three decades after her high school graduation, Jones finally reached her goal of earning a bachelor's degree. And she did it in style. After nearly 10 years attending classes, she graduated with honors in the top 20 percent of her class at East Texas Baptist University.

RIGHT or WRONG? Preventing scandal

So many current and former pastors and other church staff people have been in the news lately involved in sexual and financial scandals. What kind of background checks can a search committee legitimately implement to attempt to keep these kinds of scandals at a minimum?

Everett hopes to unify BGCT around ‘mission passion’

By Ken Camp

Managing Editor

Missions, Christian education and advocacy are three primary “kingdom tasks” the nominee for executive director of the Baptist General Convention of Texas believes can unite Texas Baptists.

Randel Everett, pastor of First Baptist Church in Newport News, Va., hopes to unify the BGCT around “not just a mission statement, but a mission passion.”

BCFS given lead role in emergency care for medical special needs

By Haley Smith

Baptist Child & Family Services

The Texas Governor's Division of Emergency Management has given Baptist Child & Family Services the lead role in care for medical special needs disaster evacuees.

The San Antonio-based agency will provide medical special needs shelter training sessions for cities and counties statewide in the next year.
