

Presidential faith

June 7, 2011

What role does a candidate's faith play in fitness for office? That issue will be front and center in 2012.

Preaching as performance?

June 7, 2011

Is preaching a performance? Should it be a performance?

Necessary circle

June 7, 2011

U.S. Christian leaders have created a Circle of Protection to guard "the least of these" against the devastation of budget cuts. May the circle hold.

Lessons from typos

June 7, 2011

Goodness, I hate typographical errors. When most people make mistakes at work, few folks, if anyone, notices. Me? I trot them out for thousands to see.

Age, fear & church

June 7, 2011

If we don't fix the "healthcare crisis," will church attendance go up? Maybe. But why wait?

Make â€œem nameless

June 7, 2011

What if the world just stopped invoking the names of embarrassing Christians? Maybe they'd go away.

Give life

June 7, 2011

This month, take a step to give gifts that will mean the world to others. Literally. Register to be an organ donor.

Fear less; love more

June 7, 2011

Is anything as dispiriting as fearful Christians?

Eating educational seed

June 7, 2011

Texas will suffer if the Legislature slashes one of the most important educational programs, the Tuition Equalization Grants.

Quakes & balance

June 7, 2011

The earthquake that rocked Japan late last week moved the island nation closer to the United States. Literally.

Teach the parents

June 7, 2011

If we want to improve education among children—particularly low-income and minority children—we need to begin by teaching their parents.

Home, sweet home

June 7, 2011

Where is home to you? I just took a trip to one of mine.
