

Sometimes it's hard to give away a campus

October 31, 2012

Five weeks after accepting a free, 217-acre campus in western Massachusetts, Grand Canyon University has walked away from the gift.

Churches find 'kingdom-oriented' ministry online

October 31, 2012

Churches that use the Internet to share their services, Sunday school classes and other ministries can find they have people who live in Austria, India and Slovakia as part of the congregation.

Majority of Protestant pastors back Romney, but many undecided

October 31, 2012

A majority of Protestant pastors plan to vote for GOP presidential nominee Mitt Romney, according to a new survey, but nearly a quarter remained undecided only a few weeks from Election Day.

Faith Digest : Family planning

October 31, 2012

A coalition of evangelicals is calling on fellow Christians to support access to family planning across the world, saying it does not conflict with evangelical opposition to abortion.

Groups support people with disabilities

October 31, 2012

As values voters both left and right weigh in on special interests from immigration reform to same-sex marriage in an election season, a lesser-known religious coalition is speaking up for Americans with disabilities.

God & Caesar

October 31, 2012

Since the earliest days of Christianity, followers of Jesus have wrestled with the demands of dual citizenship—as citizens of God's kingdom and of the nations of this world.

Faith of presidential candidates raises questions for Christians

October 31, 2012

Never before in American history has the faith of both presidential candidates been so hotly debated, writes Jim Denison, president of the Denison Forum on Truth and Culture.

Resource offers guide to churches engaging the political process

October 31, 2012

Just weeks before voters head to the polls in the closely fought presidential election, a resource developed by faith groups and civil liberties leaders offers guidelines to churches hoping to influence the political process without violating legal restrictions.

Most pastors disapprove of pulpit endorsements

October 31, 2012

Nearly 90 percent of pastors believe they should not endorse candidates for public office from the pulpit, according to a recent survey by LifeWay Research.

Coaching bug gaining in Baptist life

October 31, 2012

Do ministers need a coach? Observers say the coaching craze is spreading rapidly from its beginnings in the corporate world to just about every sector of society—including churches. And they add it isn't a fad.

Study: We're losing our religion

October 31, 2012

The number of Americans who say they have no religious affiliation has hit an all-time high—about one in five American adults—according to a recent study by the Pew Forum on Religion & Public Life.

Faith Digest: Restrictions on religious freedom increase

October 31, 2012

Religious believers throughout the world face a rising tide of restrictions, according to a study conducted by the Pew Forum on Religion & Public Life.