

Evangelical leaders urge biblical principles on immigration

October 1, 2024

More than 200 evangelical Christian leaders—moderates as well as influential conservatives—have signed an open letter urging the presidential candidates of both parties to reflect “biblical principles on immigration.”

After Hurricane Helene, faith groups ramp up disaster relief

October 1, 2024

Even before Hurricane Helene made landfall in the United States on Sept. 26, faith-based disaster groups were on the move.

Church leaders urged to reimagine future for buildings

October 1, 2024

As many as 100,000 church-owned buildings are expected to be sold or repurposed by 2030, according to an analysis in a new book.

Springfield faith leaders stand with embattled migrants

October 1, 2024

When a comment about immigrants during a presidential debate thrust Springfield, Ohio, into the national spotlight, the city's faith community rallied in support of their Haitian immigrant neighbors.

Christian nationalists likely to support authoritarianism

October 1, 2024

Americans who hold Christian nationalist views are also likely to express support for forms of authoritarianism, according to a new report from the Public Religion Research Institute.

Haitian pastors decry claim immigrants stealing, eating pets

October 1, 2024

A group of Haitian Southern Baptist pastors condemned false claims that fuel xenophobia and perpetuate damaging stereotypes.

Evangelical leaders pledge allegiance to Jesus alone

October 1, 2024

More than 350 evangelical leaders—including some Texas Baptists—have endorsed a “Confession of Evangelical Conviction,” affirming allegiance to Jesus Christ and his gospel alone, “apart from any partisan agenda.”

Trump shifts on abortion, some evangelicals still supportive

October 1, 2024

Former President Donald Trump's shifting rhetoric on abortion has unsettled some conservative faith-based activists. But several of Trump's long-term evangelical supporters are insisting the former president remains the best candidate for their cause.

Suburban D.C. county most religiously diverse in 2023

October 1, 2024

Montgomery County, Md., a suburb of Washington, D.C., was the most religiously diverse county in the United States last year, according to a census released Aug. 29 by the Public Religion Research Institute.

Complaint filed over Johnson

Amendment's application

October 1, 2024

The National Religious Broadcasters association has joined a complaint alongside two East Texas churches calling for the Johnson Amendment to be declared unconstitutional.

Texas lawmaker-seminarian opposes Christian nationalism

October 1, 2024

At a time when some evangelicals see voting for a Democrat as incompatible with being a Christian, Rep. James Talarico, D-Austin, asserts his Christian faith leads him to support the Democratic Party and its presidential nominee, Vice President Kamala Harris.

Supreme Court rejects new Title IX rule emergency request

October 1, 2024

The U.S. Supreme Court on Aug. 16 rejected an emergency request from the Biden Administration that would have required the enforcement of new Title IX regulations released in April of this year.