

Coalition urges defeat of California education bill

August 10, 2016

A multi-faith coalition urged California legislators to abandon a bill it says would violate religious freedom in higher education.

Most churchgoers hear politics from the pulpit

August 10, 2016

Most American churchgoers are hearing politics from the pulpits of their churches during this presidential election season, a new survey reveals.

Voter registration on faith groups' to-do lists

August 10, 2016

Religious groups ranging from black Protestants to Latino evangelicals to Reform Jews are gearing up for massive voter-registration activities to boost turnout on Election Day.

Can Hillary Clinton close the God gap in America?

August 10, 2016

Some political observers see this as an opportune time for Democrats to reclaim religious voters.

Evangelicals gather for Washington prayer rally

August 10, 2016

Evangelical Christians converged on the nation's capital for a prayer rally on one of the hottest days of the summer.

Evangelicals differ from most

Americans on transgender morality

August 10, 2016

A survey of 1,000 Americans by LifeWay Research finds six in 10 Americans don't believe it is morally wrong for people to identify with a gender different from the sex they were assigned at birth.

White evangelicals overwhelmingly back Trump, survey says

August 10, 2016

Donald Trump has been married three times, spoken lewdly about his daughter's body and doesn't seem to know his Bible. Yet white evangelical voters are flocking to him.

Baptist group argues government money should not fund churches

August 10, 2016

Preventing taxpayer money from funding churches is a key protection for religious liberty, according to a brief the Baptist Joint Committee for Religious Liberty filed at the U.S. Supreme Court.

Care for refugees first; conversion a possibility later

August 10, 2016

Evangelism is the lifeblood of evangelical Christians, but some say service is, too. While both may drive their efforts as they reach refugees, care comes before—and, sometimes, without—conversion.

White evangelicals say U.S. no longer a Christian nation

August 10, 2016

Nearly six out of 10 white evangelical Protestants believe the United States has been a Christian nation but is not now.

Trump to evangelicals: “I’m so on your side, I’m a tremendous believer”

August 10, 2016

When Donald Trump met with almost 1,000 evangelical leaders, he touted his Christian credentials, calling himself a “tremendous believer.”

Number of ‘Islamophobic groups’ reaches new high, Muslim group says

August 10, 2016

A Muslim civil rights organization says a record number of groups are spreading hatred of Muslims and have raised more than $200 million since 2008.