

Trump education pick worries church-state separationists

November 29, 2016

Advocates of church-state separation found little comfort in President Elect Donald Trump's announcement he plans to nominate Betsy DeVos, a leader in the self-described school reform movement for more than two decades, to head up the U.S. Department of Education.

Read it at Baptist News Global.