

McMurry sues Hardin-Simmons over nursing school

July 6, 2022

McMurry University filed a lawsuit against fellow Abilene school Hardin-Simmons University, claiming a breach of contract regarding the Patty Hanks Shelton School of Nursing.

Mural on wall in Fort Worth urges prayer for city

July 6, 2022

Patrons who park behind a “Grub & Pub” on South Jennings Avenue in Fort Worth may notice a mural on a wall inviting them to “Pray for Ft. Worth.” Pastor Erik Vance hopes they not only notice, but also will stop for a moment, respond to that invitation and “whisper a prayer at the wall.”

Court decision may open door

to expanded gambling in Texas

July 6, 2022

In a 5-4 decision, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled two Texas Indian tribes—not the state government—have authority to regulate electronic bingo games on their lands.

Millennial and Gen Z task force at work

July 6, 2022

A 12-member task force is drafting a report and finalizing its recommendations on ways to increase Millennial and Generation Z involvement in the Baptist General Convention of Texas and its churches.

Convención desafiada, animada en reunión annual

July 6, 2022

La reunión anual de 2022 de la Convención Bautista Hispana de Texas fue un momento de aliento, celebración, tristeza y esperanza.

Convención challenged, enlivened at annual meeting

July 6, 2022

The 2022 annual meeting of Convención Bautista Hispana de Texas was a time of encouragement, celebration, sorrow and hope.

El Paso church garden serves families in need

July 6, 2022

When John Román, pastor of Pueblo Nuevo Community Church in El Paso, started a food pantry in 2011 for under-resourced families, he realized something was lacking.

Hardage to retire as BGCT

executive director

July 6, 2022

David Hardage, executive director of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, has announced plans to retire following more than 10 years of service.

Retired medical missionary still making an impact

July 6, 2022

About 2.5 million nutritious meals have been provided to hungry people, thanks to a pair of nonprofit organizations that grew out of the vision of veteran medical missionary Lee Baggett and his colleagues.

Baylor study indicates children safer in faith-based care

July 6, 2022

Preliminary findings of Baylor University researchers indicate children in the care of faith-based providers are significantly safer than children cared for by secular child welfare agencies.

Lexi Rubio's parents testify before congressional committee

July 6, 2022

The parents of 10-year-old Alexandria “Lexi” Aniyah Rubio—one of 19 children killed by a gunman at Robb Elementary School in Uvalde—testified virtually before a June 8 U.S. House Committee on Oversight and Reform hearing on gun violence.

Sanchez: LGBTQ youth need to feel heard and understood

July 6, 2022

David Sanchez wants Christian parents to embrace their children who raise questions about their gender identity or sexual orientation—even when they cannot embrace what the culture is communicating to their kids.