

Editorial: A way past the problem with local autonomy

June 7, 2023

Cooperation is tested by local autonomy, especially when strong differences are involved. There could be a way past this regular collision.

Editorial: Discerning what is true amid AI-generated 'truth'

June 7, 2023

Amid increasing dire warnings about artificial intelligence, what it takes to discern truth is as necessary and available as it's ever been.

Editorial: Dump the toxic brew creating gun violence

June 7, 2023

Gun violence is not the result of any one thing but comes out of a toxic brew of contributing factors, all of which we must and can address.

Editorial: What will the SBC do about churches with women pastors?

June 7, 2023

With SBC leaders focused on whether to exclude churches with women pastors and by what criteria, an important question seems to be neglected.

Editorial: This week's news involves you; let's get involved

June 7, 2023

We may think the horrific news of the last week doesn't really involve us, but it does, and we need to get more involved.

Editorial: What robotics taught me about the church

June 7, 2023

The church can learn a lot from high school robotics programs and competitions about being the kind of people Jesus calls us to be.

Editorial: How we oppose matters more than what we oppose

June 7, 2023

We need to communicate to legislators our positions on their proposed legislation. How we communicate our positions matters immensely.

Editorial: We have the gift of reading and ought to share it

June 7, 2023

The Bible is central to literacy, and literacy is central to missions. The Bible and learning to read are gifts we can and should give away.

Editorial: Join the joy of international student ministry

June 7, 2023

International student ministry is energizing and has the potential to revive us. And it's within your reach.

Editorial: Which revolution will you join?

June 7, 2023

Revolution is risky. It cost Jesus, and it will cost us. But there's no avoiding revolution—the world against God or Christ against sin.

Editorial: We are called to be reconcilers in a broken world

June 7, 2023

Jesus came into this world, not distancing himself from our sin and brokenness, but getting very near it to reconcile us to God.

Editorial: How are we going to save our churches?

June 7, 2023

We've been asking why people are leaving the church and how we're going to save our churches. These are the wrong questions.