

Letters: Wild game could help alleviate hunger

October 16, 2015

It saddens me when I read articles like “National Commission on Hunger heard directly from hungry people.” Texas has such a large hunting industry and so many natural resources that aren't being utilized.

Our non-profit, Hunters for Good, encourages wild-game donations by not requiring hunters and game ranches pay processing fees for donated animals. We are doing what we can with what we have but could do so much more with the proper funding.

Please keep this option in mind as discussions continue about food insecurity in Texas.

John Wilton, president and executive director

Hunters for Good

Frisco