

Canada: Sharing the truth with curious campers

July 1, 2015

Student Missions Blog: We've officially had our first group of kids come through Frontier Lodge Camp here in Quebec.

Letters: Learn from children

July 1, 2015

Updated: Words have consequences as we saw during the South Carolina massacre. Will our words keep people from believing our Christian message?

Wisconsin: Unexpected connections

July 1, 2015

Student Missions Blog: When I was placed on the Northern Exposure team to Wisconsin, I expected maybe one or two strange connections with people the entire time I was here. What I didn't realize was this story really started 20 years ago in the small Texas community of Duffau.

Philippines: Seeing God at work

July 1, 2015

Student Missions Blog: Once my team and I arrived in Bicol, our team grew as we added two translators. We headed out to the field on a Saturday morning, to Apuao, a small island.

Kathy Hillman: Independence Day, political freedom & religious liberty

July 1, 2015

Brilliant red, white and blue fireworks lit the night. Strains of the 1812 Overture echoed across the water. The sky glowed as cannons volleyed and church bells rang. But that memorable evening, I wasn't watching on television. Mother and I experienced the scene overlooking Boston Harbor.

Editorial for the Fourth: To restore America, humbly seek the greater good

July 1, 2015

Our nation celebrates its 239th birthday this week. Wave your tiny flag if you perceive the pow has gone out of the firecrackers and believe the boom has gone out of the bottlerockets. Something is wrong with America, and just about everybody senses it.

Guest editorial: Maybe we should learn about race from children

July 1, 2015

Maybe we should watch our children and learn from them how to get along and care for one another. They tend to do it better than grownups.

2nd Opinion: Why tribalism in the church is stupid

July 1, 2015

I'll just come right out and say it: Tribalism in Christianity is stupid, and I'm willing to bet we are more alike than we think.

Thailand: Hard questions and faith tested

July 1, 2015

Student Missions Blog: Serving in Thailand has greatly tested my faith in God. Not that I doubted God's existence, but more in the sense that I became unsure of God's power.

Editorial: Same-sex marriage—church divided, but liberty protected

July 1, 2015

Same-sex marriage is the law of the land. Outcries to the contrary, the Supreme Court's Obergefell v. Hodges decision did not herald the demise of religious liberty in America.

Southeast Asia: Jesus, the cross-cultural worker

July 1, 2015

Student Missions Blog: I've been serving in Southeast Asia more than three weeks, and I've learned a lot of things. But one of the biggest lessons I've learned is that being a cross-cultural worker is hard.

Letters: Jesus would want disciples to carry guns

July 1, 2015

Updated: As a retired pastor, I have no problem with law-abiding citizens carrying weapons, and in this time, it actually makes sense.