Student Missions Blog: The Lord began my summer of service with an amazing week in Kodiak, Alaska, at Crab Fest.

Right or Wrong? High-church liturgy

June 6, 2014

Some young adults say they find “high church” liturgy quite attractive. Why do they feel that way? And if we try to satisfy these people, will we turn our backs on important Baptist distinctives?

Down Home: A Mary ol' time at the food-truck window

June 6, 2014

Calling people by name is a Christian virtue. (I should know).

2nd Opinion: Longing for peace as rockets fall

June 6, 2014

In front of our eyes, we watched missiles hit a Syrian “rebel” city, and rockets blowing up God knows what—but more importantly to me, God knows who. I could not believe what I saw.

Editorial: Baptists should join

Catholics to abolish poverty

June 6, 2014

Is capitalism idolatrous? That's the message from one of Pope Francis' top advisers.

First Person: The Vacation Bible School Purse

June 6, 2014

My mother-in-law, Leta Thorp Howell, was an early proponent of Vacation Bible Schools in Texas. In fact, she may hold the record for the most Vacation Bible Schools conducted in the state.

Oklahoma shelter: The reality of safety

June 6, 2014

Student Missions Blog: Most of us move through our lives in total freedom. At DaySpring Villa, security precautions are a constant factor in daily life.

New York: Spring at last; interns on the way

June 6, 2014

Student Missions Blog: It finally feels like spring, and you have no idea how happy that makes me.

Middle East: Pointing Syrian refugees toward the Son

June 6, 2014

Student Missions Blog: A few weeks ago, I was blessed with the opportunity to work with refugees from the war in Syria. We handed out aid in the form of food, diapers and other items families needed.
