

IN FOCUS: Partnerships empower missions

August 12, 2010

How do we make disciples of all the nations with costs increasing, missions giving down and doors closing to North Americans in some countries?

2nd Opinion: Missions gain 21st-century faces

August 12, 2010

The Global Mission Leadership initiative by the Baylor School of Social Work, with Jennifer Smyer as the director, is enabling a different way of thinking and doing global missions.

Gifts at work

August 12, 2010

Last week while attending an evangelism training camp, we had the privilege of meeting a missionary couple who serve here in Venezuela.

Quotes in the News

August 12, 2010

“Our faith motivates and inspires us, but we do not proselytize.” -Dirk Frans

Texas Baptist Forum (updated)

August 12, 2010

At last, we should make our cry a public lamentation for the oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico.

Love perseveres

August 12, 2010

God's love truly has no limits. I have seen this proven true in countless ways in my life and in the lives of others—for example, the way God used Mike, Jarred and me to love one particular guy this summer here in Colorado.

God will do wonders

August 12, 2010

Christians in Venezuela are consecrating themselves, waiting for God to do wonders in their nation.

Commentary: Decision on Islamic Center in tradition of religious liberty

August 12, 2010

New York City officials have taken care to treat the planned Islamic center the same way they would treat plans for a YMCA or Jewish community center in this space. In so doing, these officials have honored core dictates of religious freedom.

Father Abraham had many sons

August 12, 2010

Remember the motions to “Father Abraham,” the silly song for children? If you grew up attending Sunday school or kids choir, chances are it’s stuck in your memory.

Not giftedâ€¦just available

August 12, 2010

I have always been just a little uneasy when I hear the words “missions,” because I know that evangelism isn’t one of my spiritual gifts.

Experiencing Salmon Frenzy

August 12, 2010

“Alaska is the closest place to heaven on earth.” That’s what a man on a plane to Alaska told one of my teammates.
