

Matt Homeyer: God's call is like a life preserver to the drowning

June 7, 2021

Matt Homeyer, assistant dean of external affairs for Baylor's Truett Theological Seminary, shares this thoughts on ministry and education.

Voices: Justice looks like stepping in and seeking solutions for others

June 7, 2021

Dr. Gus Reyes describes justice through the lens of childhood experiences with his parents, siblings, pastor and church.

Los hombres orquesta no existen

June 7, 2021

La iglesia es un cuerpo. Sin amor no hay cuerpo, sino solo un cierto número de órganos independientes que pretenden atribuirse el mérito de servir a Dios.

La ropa que sí define nuestra verdadera apariencia

June 7, 2021

Como cristianos, las virtudes con las que nos vestimos y los vicios de los que nos despojamos sí muestran claramente nuestro carácter.

Commentary: We still must teach inconvenient truths about race

June 7, 2021

Kendall Lyons responds to the passage of HB 3979 by the 87th Texas Legislature, which circumscribes instruction on race and gender.

Students on Mission: Impact across generations

June 7, 2021

Student Missions Blog: The life of Aly Finner's mother was changed forever thanks to a Go Now missionary. This summer, Aly Finner is serving with Go Now Missions.

Perfil de fe: Rachel Guarneri García

June 7, 2021

Rachel Guarneri García es miembro de Community Heights Baptist Church en Lubbock, y es enfermera registrada en la UCI neonatal del University Medical Center (Centro Médico Universitario) en Lubbock

Voices: When it can't get any worse, God can't get any better

June 7, 2021

The Lord who "sits enthroned over the flood" (Psalm 29:10-11) has seen

Jason Burden, his family and his church through overwhelming storms.

Voices: Calling for a way forward for women in ministry

June 7, 2021

Hunter Brown shares a conversation he had with his church's 80-year-old organist about her position on women in ministry.

Voices: What justice looks like depends on where you're standing

June 7, 2021

Scott Collins, vice president of communication for Buckner International, encourages us to look at justice from the other person's perspective.

Dr. Elmo Johnson: Reaching, loving and helping people

June 7, 2021

Dr. Elmo Johnson, pastor of Rose of Sharon Missionary Baptist Church in Houston, shares some of his thoughts about ministry.

Editorial: Remembering Memorial Day and the Tulsa massacre

June 7, 2021

We can remember those who died serving our country and the tragedy of the Tulsa massacre, and we can be better for it.