

Voices: What justice looks like for families of suspects and defendants

August 30, 2021

Dr. Christine Nix, a retired Texas law enforcement officer and professor of criminal justice, brings attention to defendants' families.

Voices: Justice looks like the cross

August 30, 2021

Dr. Rolando Aguirre points to God's love as the source of justice, describing justice as "where John 3:16 and Matthew 25 merge."

Voices: Justice looks like wisdom: Abundance vs. scarcity

August 30, 2021

Garrett Vickrey draws a comparison between two economies—the pharaoh of Exodus and God. Justice is built on God's abundant economy.

Voices: For churches, justice should be in the core values

August 30, 2021

Jimmy Dorrell lists the core values of Church Under the Bridge and how he and his congregation face injustice in their community.

Voices: Justice looks like equity in the administration of justice

August 30, 2021

Community activist and pastor Dr. Michael Bell recounts racial disparities in his community and the broader justice system.

Voices: True justice looks like restoration and redemption

August 30, 2021

Kristin Houlé Cuellar considers how justice involves a second chance, because who we are is “more than our worst act.”

Voices: Justice looks like the church serving in the community

August 30, 2021

Jack Goodyear asserts the church has the moral authority, the ability and the command of God to establish justice in place of injustice.

Voices: Justice looks like sweeping up injustice

August 30, 2021

Ferrell Foster compares injustice to a childhood attempt to implicate his mother, hoping to evade punishment for what he intended her to do.

Voices: Justice looks like God's will on earth as it is in heaven

August 30, 2021

Brenda Kirk tells the story of how she became involved in pursuing justice and how that pursuit is connected to being a follower of Jesus.

Voices: Justice looks like other Mexicans

August 30, 2021

Jesse Rincones, executive director of Convención Bautista Hispana de Texas, explores what justice, with love, looks like for Mexicans, Latinos and Hispanics.

Voices: Justice looks like awakening

August 30, 2021

Nataly Mora describes the connection between justice and righteousness, pointing to the Good Samaritan as an example of justice in action.

Voices: Justice looks like all our responsibility

August 30, 2021

Rev. Debra Bell briefly outlines injustice experienced by Black Americans and calls all Christians to speak out for justice.