

Voices: Silent on Sunday, manager on Monday

November 4, 2024

“Women encounter disorienting differences between their Baptist churches on Sunday and their workplaces on Monday.”

Voices: Synonymous thinking and church-state separation

November 4, 2024

Leon Blevins cautions against the fallacy of thinking the church and the state are synonymous and champions church-state separation.

Voices: Ben finds a home

November 4, 2024

Ben needed more than a handout. He needed advocates and a network. Baptist Temple in San Antonio took up the challenge.

Voices: Love should prod us to proclaim Christ

November 4, 2024

Of all the bad choices a loved one can make, the most serious and devastating is not to believe in Christ, Joshua Sharp contends.

Voices: Christian unity and humility

November 4, 2024

Wade Berry calls for a humility that balances the responsibility to follow God's call with the need to trust God for the results.

Voices: A response to 'On

Transgenderism'

November 4, 2024

Cristian Cervantes argues that certain New Testament Scripture passages can't be read as affirmation of transgender.

Voices: 8 guidelines for Christian political engagement

November 4, 2024

David Holcomb suggests eight ways to reflect a faithful Christian witness as Christians engage in contemporary politics.

Voices: A bigger church and an even bigger God

November 4, 2024

Everything seemed bigger when I was a kid, but, "Nothing was as big as my little mind believed." God, however, "is bigger than I remember."

Voices: Walk for the Alzheimer's cure

November 4, 2024

Gay Lewis describes the toll of Alzheimer's on caregivers, including herself, and suggests five ways to help ease the burden.

Voices: A call for better political rhetoric

November 4, 2024

"Lower the political rhetoric within the church, and demonstrate the love of Christ to everyone, regardless of their political views."

Voices: Christian cancel culture

damages us

November 4, 2024

“What happens to a church when political agreement is more important than theological agreement,” Jack Goodyear asks.

Voices: Christian unity and the problem of rhetoric

November 4, 2024

Rhetoric—the words we use to persuade—can help or harm. We must choose our words wisely, Wade Berry contends.