

Voices: The art of amicable disagreements

May 11, 2017

Let us therefore further our witness in these times of unamicable disagreements among us. Our churches will grow when the world sees maturing Christians disagreeing but remaining fast and loving friends.

Voices: Keys to church revitalization, Part II

May 11, 2017

A church's location and its facilities play key roles in its ability to be revitalized.

Voices: Other qualities of pure, undefiled religion

May 11, 2017

True holiness is marked by humility with our words, care for the widow and orphan, and purity in seeking the glory of God and not the glory of the world.

Voices: Let us be impractically compassionate

May 11, 2017

What are we to make of those who claim (to follow) Jesus but whose deeds leave the blind, the lame, the sick, the deaf and the poor all worse off than they were before?

Voices: Trust, hope and lies in the New Laredo

May 11, 2017

A visit with Cuban immigrants on the Texas-New Mexico border reveals the importance of trust in human relationships.

Voices: The challenge of crossing cultures to understand each other

May 11, 2017

A roundtable discussion at a Baptist meeting in Waco raised all kinds of issues about transcending cultural barriers in order to understand fellow Christians.

Voices: The ‘moral guidebook’ approach to Scripture isn’t working

May 11, 2017

Why do more people call the Bible a “good source of morals” than a “historical account”? Morals are easy.

Voices: Living faithfully in the public square today

May 11, 2017

As Christians, our commission is to be witnesses for the good of the place we live and the glory of God. Because we love God, we seek love, justice, grace and righteousness.

Voices: Pursuit of the multi-ethnic church

May 11, 2017

What are simple steps your church can take to become multi-ethnic? Steve Bezner, senior pastor of Houston Northwest Church, offers four.

Voices: What I learned during Lent this year

May 11, 2017

No area of our lives should be exempt from Christ's lordship. Even the things we really, really like.

Voices: Unlock the doors

May 11, 2017

After Easter, Jesus finds us where we are hiding, calms our fears and exhorts us to step into the wide, waiting world that needs to receive his hope.

Voices: My struggle with neo-Luddism

May 11, 2017

What would happen if we applied a bit of tamed skepticism to technological progress?
