

Voices: Baptists, baptism and open membership

March 10, 2025

David Wilhite presents the view Baptist churches should welcome believers in Jesus, whether baptized by pouring, sprinkling or immersion.

Voices: Baptism by immersion for Baptist church membership

March 10, 2025

John Trow presents the view only those who believe in Jesus and are baptized by immersion can be members of a Baptist church.

Voices: What would you do if you were Esther?

March 10, 2025

Texas Baptist medical doctor, researcher and entrepreneur Rostyslav Semikov considers similarities between Zelensky and the biblical Esther.

Voices: Correcting misunderstanding about BGCT/NAMB agreement

March 10, 2025

Dustin Slaton responds to an opinion article by Toby Druin regarding the church planting agreement between the BGCT and NAMB.

Voices: The invisible impact of women in ministry

March 10, 2025

The hardest part of being a woman in ministry isn't the work itself. It's knowing no matter how much you contribute, you may never be truly seen.

Voices: The slow, tragic demise of evangelism, Part 2

March 10, 2025

Ellis Orozco warns against the alignment of Christianity with worldly and political power, calling it a mortal threat to evangelism.

Voices: Executive Board action nullifies vote by BGCT

March 10, 2025

Baptist Standard Editor Emeritus Toby Druin takes issue with a recent BGCT Executive Board action related to an agreement with NAMB.

Voices: Where should Christians look for wisdom and guidance?

March 10, 2025

Rev. Dr. Michael Evans Sr. points to God's word as a steady guide amid the chaotic and ideologically driven present.

Voices: The slow, tragic demise of evangelism, Part 1

March 10, 2025

Ellis Orozco examines threats to evangelism—one evangelicals have reacted against for centuries and one some evangelicals have been seduced by.

Voices: Wisdom and guidance in the age of chaotic politics

March 10, 2025

Wisdom is not found in American exceptionalism or centering America as God's priority, but is found in the words of Christ.

Voices: Wisdom and guidance amid today's politics

March 10, 2025

Christians are called to look beyond the transient and often tumultuous landscape of human authority to the eternal word of God.

Voices: God's grace is enough for today

March 10, 2025

Ruth Cook reminds us, no matter where we are or what are our circumstances, God's grace is with us through the Holy Spirit.